Curriculum
The Department of Language provides a multifaceted, innovative curriculum in language, literature, culture and language acquisition. The Department offers majors in French, Spanish, Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages, and Applied Linguistics with the option of teacher licensure in the first three. The Department’s commitment to a strong interdisciplinary approach to the study of language and culture is reflected in the variety and scope of offerings, as well as the opportunities to enhance on-campus study with off-campus international and domestic programs.

The French and Spanish majors offer three tracks. All hours of the major are in one language unless the student has received prior written permission of the Chair. A minimum of 15 hours, including 490, of the major must be earned under the direct supervision of the faculty of Union University.

Students are strongly urged to complete the immersion experience required for the French and Spanish majors prior to the last semester of study at Union and to enroll in at least one language course after the experience. See Department guidelines for details about planning study abroad.

The Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages major, with its strong emphasis in applied linguistics and with its field experience opportunities, provides a supportive and substantive framework for participants to develop their understanding of language and to explore their own development as language teachers. The program is designed for those seeking employment teaching English as a second or foreign language.

The Applied Linguistics major is designed for students committed to vocational and intellectual pursuits involving human language, including translation, interpretation, cross-cultural engagement, and research. The major incorporates a range of current linguistic theory and research, providing students with a framework for understanding the complexities of human language, including its structure, its acquisition, its role in culture and society, its relationship to literacy, and its significance in identity negotiation. The major also includes an innovative 12-hour component in which students—under the direction of the lead faculty—construct an emphasis relevant to linguistics, including but not limited to immersion opportunities in less commonly taught languages.

Major in Spanish, French, Applied Linguistics, or Teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages with Discipline-Specific Honors
The Honors program in the Department of Languages offers outstanding students the opportunity to engage in advanced, academically-rigorous research and writing projects that expand upon the breadth and depth of the standard curricular offerings in Spanish, French, TESOL, and Applied Linguistics. Honors students will contract to perform honors work, to be defined by a collaboration between the student and the professor, in four upper-division courses in the major. The specific courses involved are delineated below according to their respective major tracks. The fourth of these courses will be an intensive research course focused on developing the honors thesis, which will be a synthesizing paper that builds upon the research focus developed in the prior honors courses.

After a student has satisfied requirements, the student may begin the discipline-specific honors program. In most cases, this will begin no later than fall of the junior year, but may begin once admissions requirements have been satisfied in order to accommodate students with multiple majors or an accelerated graduation timeline. The request to participate in the program should initiate with the student’s advisor, who will ensure that admissions requirements have been met. Students must have 3 full semesters remaining on campus in order to enroll in DSH, and honors-designated courses must be taken on-campus at Union so that the research can be directed by Union faculty. Study abroad sequences should be carefully planned in order to allow students to complete all course requirements and enroll in the program length of their choice abroad; students who plan a full semester abroad should begin the honors sequence no later than fall of the junior year, but enrolling in the spring of the sophomore year is recommended. Students may enroll in no more than two honors-contracted courses in the department per semester. All honors courses must be upper-level courses. If there is a compelling reason to do so that supports the student’s research goals, a student may request to take one of his/her honors courses outside the major department.

Specific designation of honors courses within the major will be as follows:
1. The student in SPA or FRE honors will designate three 3-hour upper-level courses as honors courses, and the student and professor will work together to ensure that the honors component involves more in-depth and comprehensive research than the standard enrollment. The final honors-designated course will be SPA 417 or FRE 417, the Special Studies course, which will be an intensive research course completed with close guidance from the faculty member and focused on preparation and writing of the honors thesis.
2. The student in ALNG honors will designate ALNG 315, 325, 440, and 495 as honors-contracted courses.
3. The TESOL honors student will designate 315, 320, 410, and 440 as honors-contracted courses.
4. All honors students in the department will present their honors thesis in lieu of the standard capstone presentation when they enroll in the required SPA/FRE/TESL/ALNG 490 course during their final semester of coursework in the major.

Admission Requirements.
1. 3.5 minimum GPA in the major, including the completion of at least one upper-level course prior to entry into DSH
2. Recommendation to the program by the student’s academic advisor.
3. The student should have at least 3 semesters remaining at Union in order to meet the program requirement of designation of no more than two courses per semester as honors courses and allow time for preparation and presentation of the honors thesis. If students plan a fall or spring full-semester study abroad, they should plan to begin the DSH program no later than the fall of the junior year. They may incorporate research conducted abroad into their thesis research, but the honors-designated courses must be taken at Union to allow for oversight by a Union faculty member.

Progression:
1. The student must maintain a minimum GPA of 3.5 in the major in order to remain enrolled in discipline-specific honors.
2. The student must earn an A or B in each honors-designated course and adhere to the timeline that the department specifies for his/her program.
3. If students fall short of any of these requirements, they will be placed on probation with the discipline-specific honors program and given one semester to rectify their shortcomings. If the required adjustments are not made within one semester, the student will be dismissed from the DSH program. The student’s academic advisor will monitor the student's progress through the honors track each semester.

Applied Linguistics Program Guidelines
• Students majoring in any Applied Linguistics cannot double major/minor with TESOL given the shared coursework approach
• The 12-credit hour external program component for the major will consist of an immersion experience involving intensive language study new to the learner approved by the department.
• The goal of the 12-credit hour external program component is not language proficiency gains as much as it is a self-reflexive experiential learning component that complements the broader program of study.
• Students may petition the Language Department to apply the 12-credit hour external program component in a second language as satisfying the University’s BA-level core language requirement
• The external program component has a pre-requisites: ALNG 220, 325; ICS 245, 320.

Assessment of Majors
All language majors must have oral proficiency in the target language equivalent to an ACTFL rating of “Intermediate High.” This will be determined by the appropriate instructor through an individual interview to be conducted during the second semester of the junior year. Each student is responsible for scheduling the interview during the designated semester. See Department Chair for additional information.

Students presenting transfer or testing credit in language will be evaluated toward placement in the program and in possible application of those credits toward a language major or minor.
